Inside EPA - Advocates Urge EPA Use Of Novel TSCA Authority To Ban Some TCE Uses – 8/8/14 - Environmentalists and process safety advocates are urging EPA to use existing authority under the Toxic Substances Control Act (TSCA) to ban certain uses of the solvent trichloroethylene (TCE), arguing exposures pose health risks, that safer alternatives are available, and that EPA has waited decades to use TSCA authority to restrict chemical uses that pose unreasonable risks. <http://insideepa.com/201408082478997/EPA-Daily-News/Daily-News/advocates-urge-epa-use-of-novel-tsca-authority-to-ban-some-tce-uses/menu-id-95.html?s=dn>

Inside EPA - NAS Formaldehyde Report Could Bolster Stringent EPA Risk Analysis – 8/8/14 - The National Academy of Sciences (NAS) in a new report is backing conclusions by the National Toxicology Program (NTP) that formaldehyde is a human carcinogen, bolstering EPA efforts to advance its stalled assessment that could drive strict new rules for energy drilling, natural gas turbines and other emissions sources. <http://insideepa.com/201408082478924/EPA-Daily-News/Daily-News/nas-formaldehyde-report-could-bolster-stringent-epa-risk-analysis/menu-id-95.html?s=dn>

Inside EPA - Industry Seeks To Minimize 4th Circuit's CWA Permit 'Shield' Ruling – 8/8/14 - Industry is pressing three appeals courts to limit the impact of a recent decision narrowing the "shield" that protects holders of Clean Water Act (CWA) permits from liability for their discharges, urging two courts to disregard the ruling as they consider still-pending suits over the shield and seeking en banc reversal of the decision itself. <http://insideepa.com/201408082478917/EPA-Daily-News/Daily-News/industry-seeks-to-minimize-4th-circuits-cwa-permit-shield-ruling/menu-id-95.html?s=dn>

Inside EPA Clean Energy Report - Western States Weigh Narrow Multi-State Pacts To Comply With EPA's ESPS – 8/8/14 - Several Western state officials say they are open to creating bilateral or regional agreements to help comply with EPA's landmark greenhouse gas (GHG) rule for existing power plants, with talks focused on narrow "shared accounting" of efficiency and renewable programs instead of a broad GHG trading program that many political leaders oppose. <http://cleanenergyreport.com/201408082478912/Clean-Energy-Report-Daily-News/News/western-states-weigh-narrow-multi-state-pacts-to-comply-with-epas-esps/menu-id-202.html?s=dn>

Inside EPA – Climate 'Trust' Plaintiffs To Seek Supreme Court Review – 8/8/14 - Youth plaintiffs plan to seek Supreme Court review of their novel litigation claiming the government has a public "trust" duty to reduce greenhouse gas (GHG) emissions, following a unanimous U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit panel decision to dismiss the case after finding it lacked jurisdiction to hear the claim. <http://cleanenergyreport.com/201408082478995/Clean-Energy-Report-Blog/Clean-Energy-Wire/climate-trust-plaintiffs-to-seek-supreme-court-review/menu-id-204.html?s=dn>
